Restrictions on Access

The collection is open for research.

Restrictions on Use and Reproduction

Property rights in the physical objects belong to the UCLA Music Library. Literary rights, including copyright, are retained by the creators and their heirs. It is the responsibility of the researcher to determine who holds the copyright and pursue the copyright owner or his or her heir for permission to publish if Performing Arts Special Collections does not hold the copyright.

Preferred Citation

[Identification of item], Walter Jurmann Collection, APAM-1, Music Library Special Collections, University of California, Los Angeles.

Provenance/Source of Acquisition

The Walter Jurmann Collection was a gift to the Archive of Popular American Music of the University of California, Los Angeles, made by the composer's widow, Mrs. Yvonne Jurmann in 1988. Although it contains a good deal of primary and holograph material, the bulk of the papers, particularly the editions of printed songs and almost all of the secondary documentary material, such as newspaper and journal articles, was gathered by Mrs. Jurmann after the composer's death in 1971, hence the reference to this material not as Papers but as a Collection.

Biography

---

The composer Walter Jurmann (born in Vienna, Austria, 12 October 1903; died in Budapest, Hungary, 17 June 1971), was part of the great wave of talented European emigres who played so significant a role in shaping and to some extent redirecting American culture after 1933. In Jurmann's case, emigration was fortuitous rather than, as for so many, either planned or forced. After completing his schooling, love for music and his melodic gifts led him to an engagement as a professional piano player in a fashionable spa hotel in the resort town of Semmering, south of Vienna. Here he met Fritz Rotter, already a successful lyricist, who suggested they work together. In 1927 Jurmann moved to Berlin, unquestionably the most important cultural center in the German-speaking world during those interwar years, and became a pianist in the famous Eden Hotel. Rotter's and Jurmann's first collaborative effort from that year, "Was weißt denn Du, wie ich verliebt bin", was an immediate hit song, the first of many. In 1931 Rotter introduced Jurmann to the Polish composer Bronislaw Kaper (1902-1983), who had come to Berlin in 1926. Kaper had attended both the Warsaw and Vienna Conservatories, as well as the Vienna University, and in the ensuing collaboration with Jurmann he became the one to arrange and orchestrate the other's melodies. From the start the Jurmann/Kaper team was a successful and extremely productive one, further cemented by friendship. In fact, their output was so prolific as to lead their publishers to begin issuing a certain amount of the music under pseudonyms; of these Bob Handers (variously spelled also as Henders), Erich Walter Schmidt and Caspar Paolo have been ascertained from the Berlin years.

The singers who helped disseminate Jurmann/Kaper songs included Richard Tauber, Jan Kiepura, Greta Keller, Dajos Béla, Benjamino Gigli and the well-known singing group Comedian Harmonists. With the advent of the sound film, Jurmann and Kaper became involved with the German film industry, and as a consequence of their association with several German-French and Austrian-French film co-productions (Hochzeitsreise zu dritt/Voyage de noces, 1932, Ein Lied für Dich/Tout pour l'amour, 1933, among others) they went to Paris in 1933. Here they wrote for a number of French films as well as revues, publishing mostly with the Parisian firm Edition Coda (during this time they seem occasionally to have used the name Pierre Candell). In 1934 Louis B. Mayer of MGM heard of Jurmann and Kaper and persuaded the team to come to Hollywood.

Their work there -- in 1935 songs for "A Night at the Opera", "The Mutiny on the Bounty", "Escapade" and one year later the big hit song "San Francisco", in the film of the same name starring Jeanette MacDonald and Spencer Tracy -- quickly won acclaim. However, as the film industry in Hollywood gradually changed and ever fewer films required specially composed "theme" songs, Jurmann began to loosen his ties to MGM, and in 1938 the Jurmann/Kaper collaboration was amicably dissolved. As of the early 1940s Jurmann turned to freelance composing and eventually retired from professional song-composing altogether. During the last years of his life, as the Collection shows, there was a renewed vigorous output of songs, including many love songs for his second wife, whom he married in 1953, as well as songs written specifically for the cities San Antonio, Houston and Los Angeles.

Scope and Content

Collection consists of material related to career of the composer Walter Jurmann. The bulk of the collection was collected by Yvonne Jurmann after the composer's death in 1971 and includes songs from European and American films, other popular songs, newspaper and journal articles, holographs of songs and lyrics, correspondence, business papers, and photographs. Also includes the complete piano-vocal score for Windy city.

It should be noted that the Archive of Popular American Music general catalog already included a substantial amount of sheet music of Walter Jurmann songs before the receipt of the Walter Jurmann Collection. Moreover, other collections in the Archive directly or indirectly complement the Walter Jurmann Collection. Thus, for example, the Papers of Gus Kahn, a frequent collaborator of Jurmann during his American years, included an ozalid copy of a presumably unpublished Jurmann/Kaper/Kahn song, "The Magic of Springtime", originally written for but never used in the 1936 MGM film "Maytime". Other connections will no doubt come to light as the Archive's materials continue to be catalogued.

Music Index -- Introduction

The index is exclusively restricted to the series I.A-I.F and II, in other words, to Jurmann music in the Collection, as well as to all song lyrics (whether written by Jurmann or others) to which music was composed by Jurmann. Organization is alphabetical by title of the work or lyric, and entries are indicated by their series and sub-series alone, e.g., I.F or II.B. Multiple entries within the same sub-series are not indicated. If an entry is catalogued under a uniform title that differs from the actual song title, the index indicates that uniform title in the formulation: see [Uniform Title], [Series no.].[Sub-series no. ]

Music

Scope and Content Note

This series includes all the drafts, manuscripts, holographs and published editions in the Collection, representing almost exclusively music by Walter Jurmann. The series is divided into six sub-series, A-G, namely songs written for film, independent songs, stage works, choral arrangements, piano works (of which there is but one), miscellaneous compositions and, in a small concluding category, music written by composers other than Jurmann. Published, manuscript and holograph material is interfiled in the collection and listed alphabetically by title or, in the case of the film songs, alphabetically under the uniform title of the film.

The bulk of Jurmann's compositional output comprises songs, either independently conceived or written specifically for film. However, on two occasions Jurmann also composed for the stage: during his Paris tenure for a revue, "Parade de France", which played at the Casino de Paris, and in the 1940s for the musical "Windy City". That work was plagued by serious and continuing problems with the libretto (originally by Phillip Yordan); it New Haven, Philadelphia, Boston and Chicago, but Jurmann's music was unanimously praised. In the case of the category I.G, Music by others, the five entries under the uniform title "Jump for joy" are justified in the collection by virtue of Jurmann's position as chairman of the American Revue Theater that produced the 1941 Duke Ellington show.

Song Lyrics

Abstract: Introduction

Scope and Content Note

At the beginning of his career, Jurmann set predominantly lyrics written by others -- in his German period above all those by Fritz Rotter and during the American years lyrics by such as Harold Adamson, Ruth Freed, Bernie Grossman, Gus Kahn, Ned Washington and Paul Francis Webster. As of the time he withdrew from an active professional composing career, Jurmann began writing his own texts. This series is subdivided into those two categories, lyrics written by Jurmann and those written by others. As the collection reveals, Jurmann jotted down his first ideas for song lyrics in longhand on a variety of scraps of paper, before progressing to the typed stage. But whether in the case of his own words or those by someone else, he generally seems to have participated in honing the final version of any lyric he composed.

Writings

Abstract: Introduction

Scope and Content Note

There is only one entry in this series, accorded a degree of importance incommensurate with its extent or informativeness by the fact that it is the only document of its kind in the Collection. It was probably for the purposes of an interview that Jurmann drafted this one-page explanation of how he came to compose the song "San Antonio" which was premiered in 1967 and subsequently made the official theme song for the city's 1968 "Hemisfair". In his draft, Jurmann wrote among other things:

Asked what made him write his newest song San Antonio he stated, it was simply a case of Love at first sight. [ . . . ] The best way of expressing my feelings is through the medium of Music.

Scripts

Abstract: Introduction

Scope and Content Note

In the 1940s and beyond Jurmann became very interested in collaborating on screenplays and librettos for musicals. A number of scripts, plot synopses and related material, including a few screenplays crediting Jurmann on the title page, as well as several different versions to the musical "Windy City", were among Jurmann's papers. This series is arranged alphabetically by title, with all the "Windy City" versions with different titles under the uniform title "Windy City".

Correspondence

Abstract: Introduction

Scope and Content Note

Correspondence in the Jurmann Collection falls easily into three categories, A-C, namely correspondence between Jurmann and others, correspondence between others which relates to Jurmann, and correspondence between Yvonne Jurmann and others. By far the majority of the letters originates from the later years of Jurmann's life and beyond; dates for each item are given only by year. Letters from organizations are, secondarily, cross-referenced under the name of the actual writer of the letter. Correspondence to Walter Jurmann which was written in response to an extant communication from him is filed alphabetically under Jurmann (box 7/folder 2) , as are most of the other letters or copies of letters written by Jurmann himself.

Sub-series V.B, Correspondence relating to Walter Jurmann, has three further subdivisions, namely correspondence regarding the song "San Antonio", correspondence regarding the song "San Francisco" and Miscellaneous; this last category consists of two items sent by Walter Jurmann' s father Norbert Jurmann to the family of his brother-in-law, Rudolf and Olga Fischer.

The following key is in explication of the abbreviations used to describe the letters.

Documents

Abstract: Introduction

Scope and Content Note

This series is subdivided into seven categories, as summarized in the table of contents. A distinction is made between contracts, category VI.A, and agreements, category VI.B; whereas contracts are actual prepared (and usually printed) documents, agreements were often no more than a signed and counter-signed formal letter. The army documents refer mainly to Jurmann's honorable discharge in May of 1943, after he had voluntarily enlisted in the previous year; thereafter he participated in USO shows for the troops. Category VI.F, the personal documents, includes identity cards, passports and driver's licenses.

The following key is in explication of the abbreviations used to describe the letters.

Secondary material on Walter Jurmann ranges from the occasional periodical article, works lists and discographies to newspaper clippings, concert and festival programs, press releases and material relating to radio and television programs on Jurmann. The series is sub-divided into seven sub-series. The newspaper clippings and radio program materials are not described in detail, though items in both sub-series are arranged in chronological order, insofar as that was possible.

Photographs

Abstract: Introduction

Scope and Content Note

There are 173 photographs in all, mostly black and white prints, with occasional duplicates. The photographs are organized according to the criteria laid out in the table of contents, in twelve sub-series and with photographic negatives in a thirteenth. Identification of the individuals depicted, where provided, was to a great extent undertaken on the basis of information kindly provided by Mrs. Yvonne Jurmann. On group photographs the subjects are referred to by number, with identification proceeding from left to right.
